JPMorgan BetaBuilders Europe ETF

Analyst Report

The JPMorgan BetaBuilders Europe ETF (BBEU) tracks an index of hundreds of European stocks. The index is designed to cover the top 85% of the float-adjusted market capitalization of European equity markets, so it misses many of the small cap Japanese companies captured by rival funds like the Vanguard FTSE Europe ETF (VGK), SPDR Portfolio Europe ETF (SPEU), and iShares Core MSCI Europe ETF (IEUR). JPMorgan priced its BetaBuilders ETF lineup to compete with other low-cost providers of core portfolio building blocks. BBEU offers diversified exposure to European equities at a reasonable price, though investors looking for small cap exposure might prefer the competition.
