First Trust Asia Pacific ex-Japan AlphaDEX Fund Analyst Report

This ETF offers exposure to a handful of developed economies in Asia, including South Korea, Hong Kong, Australia and Singapore but excluding Japan. As such, this fund may be appealing to those who are looking to tilt developed markets exposure towards Asia, but are skeptical of Japan's ability to generate meaningful GDP growth. Many of the underlying economies are included in broad-based international ETFs, so beware double-dipping on some of these markets (though FPA can be useful for a tactical overweight position). While there are multiple Asia ex-Japan ETFs available, FPA is unique because of the methodology underlying the related index. This ETF is part of the AlphaDEX suite of ETFs from First Trust that are linked to indexes utilizing quant-based screens in an attempt to identify the stocks poised to outperform their broad peer group. In exchange for this advanced methodology, investors will have to pay a bit more; FPA is a bit more expensive than cap-weighted ETF options such as AAXJ and EPP (though the gap is relatively small compared to expense differentials among U.S equity funds). For those who believe that the AlphaDEX methodology has the ability to generate excess returns over the long run, this ETF may be very appealing as a way of overweighting developed Asian economies in a long-term portfolio or for establishing a short-term tactical tilt towards this region. For those looking to minimize fees or skeptical about the ability of the methodology to add value, EPP may be a better option.
