

FEBZ

TrueShares Structured Outcome (February) ETF

Fund Description

FEBZ aims for specific buffered losses on the S&P 500 over a specific holdings period with uncapped gains, subject to strategy costs. The actively-managed fund holds options and collateral.

FactSet Analyst Report

FEBZ uses options in an effort to moderate losses on the S&P 500 over a one-year period starting each February. The fund foregoes some upside return as well as any dividend component because the options are written on the price (not total) return version of the index. While aiming to prevent realization of the first 8-12% of the S&P 500s losses, the fund also allows for uncapped upside participation (less the cost options), making it unique from other buffer ETFs with a stated cap on potential gains. Investors who buy at any other time than the annual reset day may have a very different protection and buffer zone. The issuer publishes effective interim levels daily on its website. The fund must be held to the end of the period to achieve the intended results. The targeted buffers do not include the funds expense ratio. The fund is actively managed, resets annually and will utilize both FLEX and listed options.
