

HEAL

Global X HealthTech ETF

Fund Description

HEAL tracks a narrow index of stocks globally, seeking to capture novel applications of AI technology and robotics focused on the healthcare industry. Companies selected must derive 50% of their revenue from one of the four subthemes. Holdings are weighted based on free-float market capitalization.

FactSet Analyst Report

HEAL aims to focus on tech-driven innovation in the healthcare sector. As such, the fund seeks to provide exposure to firms looking to shape the future of healthcare by improving patient outcomes and driving medical breakthroughs. Companies around the world, including ADRS, that engage in healthcare analytics and software, smart medical devices, AI-enabled drug discovery, and tech-enabled consumer healthcare. The underlying index screens for companies that are found in FactSet industries identified by the index administrator as relating to healthcare technology and derive at least 50% of their revenue from one or more of the subthemes. Prior to April 1, 2025, the fund tracked a narrower index targeting telemedicine and digital health, the Solactive Telemedicine & Digital Health Index. The fund name was Global X Telemedicine & Digital Health ETF and traded using the ticker EDOC.

