JPMorgan Active Growth ETF

Fund Description

JGRO is actively managed to invest in US large-cap companies perceived to have strong earnings growth potential.

FactSet Analyst Report

JGRO actively invests in US large-cap growth stocks that are believed to have strong earnings growth potential. Holdings are constructed to leverage the advisers large-cap growth and growth advantage strategies that are each managed by different portfolio managers. Employing a combination of research, valuation, and stock selection, the adviser identifies companies that they believe will achieve above-average earnings growth over the next several years. The adviser also takes environmental, social and governance factors into consideration. The fund may use derivatives, such as futures contracts, as substitutes for securities. The portfolio managers have full discretion to make buy, sell, and hold decisions at any time.
