

JHDV

John Hancock U.S. High Dividend ETF

Fund Description

JHDV is an actively managed fund of high dividend-paying or high dividend growth stocks. Selection and weighting are based on a proprietary systematic approach of US large- and mid-cap companies.

FactSet Analyst Report

JHDV is an actively managed ETF that primarily invests in high dividend-paying US large- and mid-cap equity securities. Securities may include common and preferred stocks, convertible securities, rights, warrants, and REITs listed on a US exchange. The fund manager utilizes a proprietary systematic approach that screens for high and persistent dividends or dividends expected to grow over time. The screened securities are then optimized using security and portfolio factors to determine weight for each component. The fund intends to manage its risk by investing in a broad range of sectors but may occasionally focus its investments in particular sectors of the US market.
