Global X Conscious Companies ETF

Fund Description

KRMA tracks an equal-weighted index composed of U.S.-listed companies that exhibit environmental, social, and corporate governance (ESG) characteristics.

FactSet Analyst Report

KRMA tracks an equal-weighted index that focuses on ESG factors as they relate to the five stakeholders of a company: customers, employees, suppliers, stock and debt holders, and communities in which the company operates. Specifically, the index uses a multitude of information resources, public rankings, and proprietary models to score and rank companies that exhibit positive ESG characteristics such as employee productivity, customer loyalty, corporate governance, executive integrity, and quality of financial reporting, among a number of other categories. The final step in the process screens out companies that haven't exhibited these ESG characteristics for three consecutive years. Minimum capitalization for KRMA is USD 2 billion, effectively screening out many small caps. The fund makes no claims to sector constraints. The Index undergoes annual reconstitution in October and quarterly rebalance starting each in January.
