FactSet Analyst Report

NUSA draws from a universe of US government and corporate debt, residential and commercial mortgage-backed securities, and asset-backed securities, as well as US dollar-denominated debt issued by foreign governments and corporations that are publicly offered for sale in the US. The index divides the universe into several categories by asset class, sector, credit quality, and duration. These categories are weighted to maximize the portfolios yield-to-worst within marketlike constraints (including duration, credit quality, and sector weight). Holdings are market-value weighted within the categories. NUSA is rebalanced on a monthly basis.
