FactSet Analyst Report

UVDV primarily invests in dividend-paying stocks from around the world that are perceived as undervalued. Stocks are considered dividend-paying if they declare and pay cash dividends at least on a yearly basis. The sub-adviser selects equity securities perceived as out of favor and undervalued using a methodology that analyzes past and prospective free cash flow and holds them until they've reached their determined actual value. The fund could hold securities of any size across multiple industries. As an actively managed ETF, the portfolio managers can analyze market and financial data to make buy, sell, and hold decisions at their discretion.
